

A Load of BOLs (Balls of Light) or Orbs

An Essay by Chris Thomas

© Chris Thomas 2011

We have all seen the many thousands of photographs which show the image of a Ball of Light in the finished photograph which were not necessarily visible to the naked eye.

There have been numerous interpretations placed upon these BOLs, but what are they in reality?

Most people assume that these are a new phenomenon whereas there is, in fact, a written history of sightings going back several hundred years.

In the past, these were not called Balls of Light or Orbs but “swamp lights”, “will o’ the wisp” and “Jack o lanterns” as well as many other names in local dialects.

To understand what this phenomenon is, we need to look at the nature of the Universe, how it is constructed and how it functions.

The Nature of Our Universe

Ever since Sir Isaac Newton had an apple land on his head (figuratively speaking) 400 years ago, science has believed in gravity. It is only in very recent years that they have begun to question the role that gravity plays and even to question whether that gravity exists at all.

Certainly Double Dark Theory (Dark Matter and Dark Energy) presents considerably more questions than it answers with most cosmologists now believing that this theory has no validity at all.

As DDT is becoming increasingly rejected, more and more cosmologists are looking towards Black Holes as a way of explaining how the universe holds itself together. However, even with Black Hole Theory, it remains impossible to answer many of the questions.

Fortunately, in recent years, some of the more aware scientists are beginning to realise that what holds the universe together is a form of electro-magnetic energy.

If it is assumed that electro-magnetic energy holds the universe together, all of the unanswered questions that cosmologists fight over suddenly become answered.

In addition to the workings of the universe, electro-magnetic frequencies also seem to play a major role in life on Earth; especially when it is applied to humans and animals.

But, there is another way of looking at electro-magnetic frequencies and that is instead of electro-magnetic, substitute the word consciousness.

There is a great deal of debate, in scientific circles, about how large an organism needs to be before it develops consciousness as well as where consciousness is located within the body.

The current thinking is that consciousness is located in a region of the brain known as the amygdale. This is a region at the base of the brain and attached to the brain-stem. It would be fair to say that looking at the amygdale to see consciousness is akin to looking at Liverpool hoping to see Britain.

The reality is that the scientific view is from the wrong direction.

If we look to more “traditional” sources of knowledge, and particularly, the Akashic, what we find is a very different view of reality to that which scientists are currently exploring.

Instead of the body becoming large enough for consciousness to develop, it is the consciousness that builds the body. In other words, life begins with consciousness and all else follows.

It is the same with our Universe.

Our Universe began with a consciousness, a “Universal Soul”, and everything that exists in our Universe is also a soul, or consciousness. When scientists talk about measuring electro-magnetic frequencies what they are actually talking about is measuring soul energy.

Gravity does not exist. What holds the Universe together, what holds humans on the Earth and what makes apples fall to the ground is soul energy, consciousness energy.

Everything that exists anywhere is a soul, a consciousness, and it is the interactions between souls which holds everything together and makes everything happen. Without consciousness, soul, nothing would exist and no events would occur.

Our Universe exists because it was Created to exist. A soul, a consciousness, exists who decided to explore the potential It contains within Itself. This Creationery-source asked Itself a question; a question along the lines of “What would happen If...?” In order to answer It’s question, this Source brought our Universe into being and peopled it with other, lesser forms of consciousness that could explore the answer to the Question on the Creator’s behalf. In this way, the Universal “envelope” is a consciousness, each galaxy is a consciousness, each solar system is a consciousness and each star is a consciousness.

In addition, we have free-moving and free-acting souls who can explore the Answers on the Creator’s behalf. These free-moving and free-acting souls take on two forms.

The first do not have any physical form or physical density and the Akashic calls them the non-physical races. These souls were Created about 100 million years ago.

The second have a physical form and a physical density but are comprised of energies that fall outside of human perceptions. The Akashic calls these the semi-physical races and they were Created about 30 million years ago.

Both of these groups of races, the non-physical and the semi-physical, started their existence on a home planet but, over the millennia, have spread out throughout our Universe.

But, there was another stage of development that was universally decided upon about 60 million years ago and this new development lead directly to the creation of our solar system.

For many reasons, see Synthesis, once a suitable body form had been developed on Earth, those souls who came to live here are primarily made up of the non-physical races.

In other words, 99.9 per cent of the souls who are in human form on Earth are souls who originated with the non-physical races. The other 0.001 per cent of the human population is made up of souls who originate from the semi-physical races. There are very many reasons for this division of human souls which are outside of the scope of this essay but see the author’s books on the subject.

The Development of Our Solar System

As with all free-moving and free-acting life throughout our Universe, a “home planet” was needed in order for human life to exist, a place where this new “experiment” in a fully physical life-form could inhabit.

Throughout our Universe, many billions of solar systems exist. Usually, the solar system is comprised of one soul. This solar system soul is normally the solar system sun, or suns if it is a binary system. All of the planets within this type of solar system are created by the solar system consciousness as well as all of the forms of life that exist on those planets (except for situations where the solar system supports either the non-physical or semi-physical races – in these instances, the souls of the “higher life-forms” are brought into being by the Creator).

With our solar system, the arrangement is quite different.

Our solar system is unique. That means what it says; no other solar system is comparable to the one we inhabit. The reason for this is that the sun and each of the planets, in our solar system, are individual consciousnesses in their own right.

This collection of souls, who were capable of building planets, was decided upon in order to maximise the potential for bringing “physical” beings to life.

Originally, all of the planets in our solar system were inhabited by a huge diversity of life-forms, the likes of which do not exist anywhere else within our Universe. However, about 3.8 million years ago, a solar system-wide disaster occurred and virtually all life was wiped out except for our planet; Earth.

The reasons for this solar system-wide disaster fall outside of the scope of this essay but see The Universal Soul.

What was left of life within our solar system were those life-forms that had developed on, or had been adopted by, the Earth.

To summarise:

Every single planet, and the sun, that exist within our solar system is a separate consciousness and, until about 3.8 million years ago, supported “higher” forms of life – the equivalent of human beings. Virtually all life was wiped out at that time except for the life on Earth.

Following this solar system-wide disaster, the Earth went on to develop the human form of life to its full potential. This means that, originally, the human life-form contained the whole of the soul within the body; this is how a “true” Human Being should be.

In the intervening period, we have lost our ability to maintain the whole soul within the body and have become used to living with the soul divided. This division means that we have approximately one quarter (25%) of the soul within the physical body – “the physical self” with the remaining three quarters (75%) making up the higher aspects of the soul – the “higher self”.

This divided soul is not our natural state but arose because of difficulties connected with the Earth’s “base-note” frequency of 7.56 Hz.

To understand how we can live on Earth, and discover to what frequency the Earth’s base-note energies needed to be raised, we embarked, 7,000 years ago, on what the Akashic calls “The Human Plan”.

This Human Plan was given a time limit and that time limit runs out at the end of 2011/2012 – in other words, now.

What we, and the Earth, are doing is raising our base-note frequencies in order for the whole of the soul to be re-merged back into the physical body so that, once again, we become true Human Beings.

This means that the energy patterns that we experience on Earth are being radically altered from the old 7.56 Hz to the new 3.5 KHz. All of these energy changes taking place between May 2000 and November 2011.

This means that we, humans, and the planet are altering how our consciousness energies interact.

In order to help us in our transitions, the whole of the solar system is being flooded with new energies that have never before been experienced here.

In response to these new energies, the whole of the solar system is also “waking up”. All of the planets within our solar system are beginning to change. As human consciousness expands so does the Earth’s but also so does the consciousnesses of all of the planets within the solar system.

It is this change in consciousness energies that is responsible for the huge number of BOLs and other related energy phenomenon that have become so prevalent in the past few years.

Balls of Light

Before we go on to explore BOLs and related phenomena, we need to look at what they are not.

BOLs are not “Unicorns” nor are they any other being from the realm of the Faerie and BOLs are not “Guardian Angels”.

These kinds of explanations have arisen from those who have an overactive romantic fantasy life.

Balls of Light are not the only unusual aerial oddities that have been sighted in recent years.

1. Some are obviously man-made, or have arisen because of man’s activities.
2. Some are generated by the Earth.
3. Some originate from within our solar system.
4. Some originate from our galaxy or the Universe beyond.

1. Man-made aerial phenomenon.

Since the first HAARP installation (High-frequency Active Auroral Research Programme) was switched on in Alaska, strange things have been happening to the Ionosphere.

Whilst sold to the public as an advanced form of military communications system, HAARP has shown itself to be designed to alter weather patterns.

Whilst HAARP began with a single installation in Alaska, there are now HAARP stations located in numerous countries – about 19 installations in all.

There have also been dedicated satellites launched to expand the scope of the project.

Essentially, what HAARP does is to pump huge amounts of energy into the upper atmosphere just to see what would happen.

The first reaction was to push weather patterns off their normal seasonal patterns and create a great deal of freak weather. This ability has since been used to engineer changes in weather patterns on a global scale.

With the launching of HAARP dedicated satellites, it meant that areas of the upper atmosphere could be heated in very local ways creating weather patterns that were fully controllable.

Also, the energy emissions from the satellites have been turned towards the Earth where they have been, at the military's admission, bombarding the Earth with VLF (Very Low Frequency) energies which are known to trigger earthquakes.

The other use to which these VLF energies are put is in an attempt to hold the Earth's base-note frequencies as low as possible to prevent The Human Plan from reaching its conclusion and making it very difficult for humans to reintegrate the soul back into the body.

In heating the Ionosphere, strange energy patterns can be created such as moving plasma tubes, plasma balls and plasma strings (plasma is a hot ionised gas containing charged electrons) all of which glow brightly in the sky for short periods.

Rainbow coloured clouds with an inverted colour spectrum are also examples of this.

2. Earth generated energies.

The Earth has always produced energy emissions, particularly as a precursor to earthquake or volcanic activity. These energy emissions usually take the form of dry lightning.

Alternatively, there can also be brightly glowing plasma streams that have nothing to do with earthquakes or volcanoes. These plasma streams can be huge, stringing along for many miles and can be semi-permanent - such as at Hessdalen in Norway. These kinds of emissions are usually over energetic rock formations such as quartz-bearing granite and are a natural energy emission. Although there is growing evidence, within the Akashic, that an increasing number of plasma-type emissions are generated by the Earth to defend herself against HAARP emissions.

But, these are not BOLs.

There are BOLs that travel along the ground, BOLs that fly upwards through the atmosphere and BOLs that travel downwards from the atmosphere to the ground.

All of these BOLs are small elements of consciousness.

About ten years ago, a film was made by two students of a crop formation being formed by two BOLs. This film caused huge controversy at the time and a great deal of "official" pressure was generated in an attempt to prove that the film was a hoax. However, there are elements of the film that cannot be hoaxed and the building of crop formations is one of the purposes of BOLs.

BOLs are generated by the Earth's own consciousness - they are "messengers" created by the Earth's consciousness to pass on information. In the case of crop formations, they are messages either to people, although we are unable to understand the "consciousness language" used, or to those who inhabit NTV's (non-terrestrial vehicles formerly known as UFO's).

These crop consciousness messages are trying to tell us what the Earth feels about current events. They can also be warnings that say something like "do not approach the Earth", or they can also be part of the Earth's defence system.

For example: One of the semi-physical races has decided that they should be living on Earth. In order to achieve their goal, they have attempted to mislead people into believing that they are our "creator gods" who have returned, at this time, to help us "ascend to a 5th dimension" by transporting us off the planet.

They have also attempted to remove the Earth's own consciousness from the planet and substitute a consciousness of their own - a "walk-in" on a planetary scale.

The first attempt to oust the Earth's consciousness was made by persuading a large group of people to build two copper lined shafts that were 333 feet (100 metres) deep into the ground and filled with programmed crystals. These two shafts were called “celestoriiums” by one group of the semi-physical race who call themselves Hathor. When the celestoriiums failed to achieve their task, this semi-physical race, known as the Velon, tried other means to achieve the same goal. One concerted effort by them was to attempt to “hijack” the primary energy line that runs from Silbury Hill, in Wiltshire, through the Avebury stone circles and on to Exmore. This hijack was attempted in the summer of 2010 centred on “Eastfield” in Wiltshire. In order to prevent the Velon achieving their aim, the Earth generated many thousands of BOLs to help defend herself. Many people witnessed these BOLs both in plain sight and on film.

Many people still support the Velon, and their attempts to take over the planet and transport humans to another planet by falling for the propaganda produced by the Velon races (Annunaki, Hathor, Jjundaa, Johnaan, Mila and Oa). All of this channelled material has one aim - to remove humans off the Earth and replace the Earth’s consciousness.

The Earth is defending herself against attack and this accounts for some of the huge increase in BOLs in recent years. Not only is the Earth defending herself against attack but she is also doing everything she can to help us complete The Human Plan.

3. Some originate from within our solar system

The Human Plan is of enormous universal importance. A successful outcome to this Plan will alter the way in which the Universe functions.

As we approach the end time of The Plan, the other planets within our solar system are beginning to awaken from their 3.8 million year slumber.

The sun, as well as all of the planets, are altering their energy patterns to take advantage of the massive new energies that are entering our solar system. These energies are targeted at Earth from the centre of our galaxy as well from the Universe beyond.

As each planet awakens, they are sending out messages to all of the other planets and the Earth is responding. These “communications” are made by transferring very small quantities of planetary consciousness out into space and sending them to the different planets. These communications take the form of BOLs.

Some of these messages are from the Earth and are seen to rise from ground level and up through the atmosphere. Some of these messages are received by the Earth and are seen to fall from the atmosphere to the ground. This is what BOLs actually are; they are communications from the Earth or communications from the other planets.

4. Some originate from the galaxy and beyond

Given the immense range of energies that are now at work on Earth, other energy forms are also appearing or at least, becoming more noticeable to humans.

These energy forms can appear to be shaped like a squid or an octopus that can be up to several miles long. Some of these larger forms are also used to send communications beyond our solar system.

There is nothing new about these energy forms; our wiser ancestors also knew of them and described them in their traditions as “sky-spirits”. Native American, Inuit, Aboriginal, Celtic, South American, etc all have traditions of “spirits” that float around the sky, especially in rain clouds.

Now that scientists have finally been forced to realise that they exist, they have been given names like “sprites” and “elves” but because of the completion of The Human Plan and the energies that are now available to Earth and the solar system, these kinds of phenomena are massively increased.

Conclusions

The Earth has two energy systems. There is the “lay-line” grid which is an energy pattern that supports all of the life on the planet’s surface; including humans. Then there are the planet’s own consciousness energies. This energy we do not often encounter as we are, currently, unable to function on that kind of energy level.

However, once we have successfully completed our part of The Human Plan, we will be able to communicate directly with the Earth’s own consciousness.

In the meantime, the Earth does her best to communicate with us through crop formations. These the Earth builds with her own consciousness energies and, in order to carry out these communications, she builds Balls of Light.

As we rapidly approach the end dates of 2011/2012, the Earth is doing her best to communicate with us, both about the events that are currently unfurling and the threat presented to her and humanity by the semi-physical race known as the Velon.

Whilst these forms of communication are currently beyond our level of understanding, once we complete our part of The Human Plan by reintegrating our higher selves back into the physical body, we will be able to understand her and communicate freely.

The more we humans can do to bring about our own completions, the easier the job the planet has to do.

Instead of building fantasy stories around these BOLs and their meaning, we need to listen to the Earth and to our own higher selves and complete our own re-integrations as rapidly as possible.
